GLOBAL STOCK MARKETS

Tech Stocks Lead, U.S. Stock Indices Hit New Records

Despite weakening job reports, tech stocks helped global stock markets rise positively.

Commodity markets increased while the DXY and bond yields declined.

- U.S. stock markets increased by an average of 1.5%, EU600 +1.5%, Nikkei 225 +3.4%, CSI 300 -0.9%.

- Commodity index +1%; oil prices +2.8%, gold +1.4%, silver +4.9%; copper, iron ore, and zinc prices surged over 6%.

- DXY index -0.8% and 10-year U.S. Treasury yield -0.05% for the week.

At the central bank forum, the FED Chair shared progress on inflation but emphasized the need for sustainable inflation reduction to near 2% before cutting interest rates. The ECB reduced interest rates in their June meeting, but the ECB president also stressed the need to ensure rates are tightly controlled before any further reductions.

Upcoming significant events include the French parliamentary elections, the FED Chair testimony before Congress, and the CPI reports from China and the U.S.

VIETNAM STOCK MARKET

The VN-Index Rises Amid Doubts with Low Liquidity.

The VN-Index experienced a 3% increase over 5 sessions, while liquidity dropped by 27%.

- The market quickly rebounded from low price levels as end-of-month margin selling pressure subsided. Some securities companies increased their margin rates for stocks during the week.

- 17/18 sectors saw gains, led by oil and gas, information technology, tourism and entertainment, all up over 6%. The banking sector provided crucial support for a stable recovery despite limited liquidity.

- Foreign investors recorded a net sell of $83 million, a significant decrease from $176 million the previous week.

Bottom-fishing activities in anticipation of second-quarter earnings were quite suitable for the past week. However, the advantage of bottom-fishing has noticeably diminished as the VN-Index returned to the middle of the accumulation channel. Investors are waiting for price movements in the 1,270-1,285 range before considering increasing their investment weight.

UOB Bank's report maintained Vietnam's growth forecast at 6% for 2024. UOB noted a bright growth outlook despite slower growth in the second half of the year due to a high base and existing risks from political conflicts disrupting global trade and energy. Recovering consumption is putting pressure on CPI. UOB believes that the SBV will maintain the refinancing rate at 4.5%.

TECHNICAL ANALYSIS: VN-Index bounces back from low consolidation zone, surpassing SMA20

VN-Index Daily Chart Analysis

Contrary to last week's movement, the VN-Index bounced back from near the lower price channel of the consolidation zone, which coincides with the 23.8% Fibonacci level. The Bollinger Bands are widening, liquidity remains low, and technical indicators are holding at neutral levels, not yet providing a reliable confirmation signal for the direction.

Some noteworthy characteristics of the daily chart:

- RSI rose from 41 to 56 points.
- MACD crossed above the signal line and surpassed the zero level. Liquidity decreased by 27% compared to the average trading volume of the previous week.
- VN-Index crossed above the 20, 50, 100, and 200-day SMAs.

Conclusion: While the index has broken above the 20-day SMA, persistently low liquidity and the appearance of doji candlesticks at the 1,285 level suggest a potential need for further consolidation between 1,275 and 1,285 points next week. This consolidation phase could form the right shoulder of an inverted head-and-shoulders pattern, with a neckline at 1,285 and a price target of 1,300 points.
